四、閱讀測驗

(甲) One of the biggest problems the Olympic Games has faced in recent years has been drug-taking by athletes to enhance their performance. Two of the biggest controversies involved runners Ben Johnson and Marion Jones. Johnson won the men's 100 meters at the 1988 Games in Seoul, and Jones won three gold medals in women's events at the 2000 Sydney Games. Both were later found to have used performance-enhancing drugs, and were stripped of their medals. The most unusual case of drug-taking at the Olympics involved Cian O'Connor, competing in an equestrian (horse racing) event at the 2004 Athens Games. O'Connor won the event, but then had his medal stripped because officials found he had given his horse performance-enhancing drugs!

Sports officials work tirelessly to test athletes for drug use. It is important to stamp out the use of these drugs from sports; otherwise, people will lose confidence in sports and might stop watching them. Some drugs are hard to find with the current drug tests. Therefore, sports officials are keeping samples of athletes' blood for use in the future. The officials feel that more advanced tests in the future might be able to detect drugs in these blood samples. This might help to deter people from cheating.

26. What is the main idea in this article?
(A) Lots of sports people take drugs and this should be stopped.
(B) Lots of sports people enjoy drugs rather than alcohol.
(C) Drug taking is not much fun for sports people.
(D) Drugs can be detected easily in a sports person's blood.
27. What do you think 'strip' means?
(A) dress (B) take away (C) give to (D) decorate
28. This story mentions Olympic Games in _____.
(A) India (B) Japan (C) Malaysia (D) Korea
29. What do you think 'enhance' means?
(A) take away from (B) involve in (C) improve (D) entertain
30. What do you think 'stamp out' means?
(A) encourage (B) include (C) get rid of (D) annoy
31. According to the author, how many gold medals the Olympic Games take back because of drug use?
(A) two (B) three (C) four (D) five
32. Which one of the following statements is TRUE?
(A) Taking drugs may slow down the athletes.
(B) Athletes should take performance-enhancing drugs when they do not feel well.
(C) Keeping blood samples may prevent athletes from cheating.
(D) Blood samples are taken to enhance athletes' performance.
33. Why might people lose confidence in sports and stop watching them if sports people keep taking drugs?
(A) Because alcohol is better than drugs and it is also legal.
(B) Because people believe that Olympic Games are watched by athletes.
(C) Because athletes are not allowed to compete if they have drugs in their blood.
(D) Because the biggest drug-takers will most likely to win, not the best athletes

(乙) In 1927, businessman Joe Thompson gave permission to one of his employees to sell eggs, milk, and bread in one of his stores. Although there were many grocery stores and general shops, Thompson believed that selling these products in the stores would make shopping more easily for his customers. In 1928, Thompson started to train employees so that they would provide the same quality and service in every store he owned. They were also asked to wear a uniform. During the Great Depression, Thompson's company went bankrupt. However, he managed to keep the company running by borrowing money. In 1946, the name of the stores was changed to 7-Eleven to reflect the stores' new business hours (7 am to 11 pm), which was new at the time. In 1963, a 7-Eleven store was open all night because the customers asked for it. This was the first 24-hour store in the industry. More companies followed the practice. During the 80s, the company went through difficult times and 70% of the company was bought by Ito-Yokado, a Japanese company. In 2011, 7-Eleven celebrated its 40,000th store opening and opened its 50,000th store within two years. Nowadays 7-Eleven is a top Japanese-owned American International chain and the Thompsons still own about 5% of it.
